

Entry Level Graphic Designer

Pip Printing is a well-established digital production center and marketing consultant in the Anderson, SC community and is looking to add to their creative team. The right candidate will work closely with coworkers to plan, design and produce artwork to meet customer requirements. This position will facilitate professional growth both inside the design arena as well as general business experience.

A typical day for our designer is spent preparing files on the computer, consulting with customers, providing proofs and sending files to production. In addition, performing general office duties such as answering phones and helping with customer service. Because our operation is a small business, candidate must be self-starter, willing to jump in and pull his/her share of the load at whatever task is required, and be able to work under pressure.

This position requires a unique combination of office skills, creative design skills and good communication skills. The preferred candidate will be experienced with Creative Suite, specifically InDesign, Photoshop, Illustrator and Acrobat. Experience with web design is a significant bonus.
